Program Objectives

This conference will focus on understanding the basic medical needs of LGBTQ+ patients, especially those who identify as transgender and/or gender nonconforming. Experts will outline steps to educate and counsel colleagues and administrators on LGBTQ+ cultural competency, encouraging systemwide progress toward health care institutions that are more welcoming for LGBTQ+ people. We'll also increase providers' awareness of and adherence to LGBTQ+ affirming policies and practices at UC Davis Health and beyond.

Who Should Attend

This conference is designed for physicians, physician assistants, nurses, psychologists, social workers, physical therapists, and other allied health care professionals interested in improving wellness and care for their LGBTQ+ patients, as well as students, trainees, and community members.

EDUCATIONAL NEED

Best practices for LGBTQ+ health have traditionally not been included in medical education and are just recently being introduced. This conference is committed to improving care for LGBTQ+ patients by educating health and mental health providers across disciplines (e.g., nursing, medicine, mental health, education) about the unique needs of these patients. Our objective is to begin to build a broad community of LGBTQ+ and ally providers committed to understanding the needs of diverse patients and to providing respectful and competent care. This conference is designed for physicians, nurses, psychologists, social workers, other allied health care professionals interested in improving wellness and care for their LGBTQ+ patients and surrounding communities.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

At the end of the activity, participants should be able to:

- Understand the basic medical needs of LGBTQ+ patients, especially those who identify as transgender and/or gender-nonconforming.
- Identify steps to educate and counsel colleagues and administrators on LGBTQ+ cultural competency to embed systemwide progress toward more LGBTQ+ welcoming health care institutions.
- Increase providers' awareness of and adherence to LGBTQ+ affirming policies and practices at UC Davis Health and beyond.
